Is It Ten You Drink.

The New York Mercantile Journal, in speaking of the tea crop failure in China to the amount of 60,000 skests the present year, has the goodness to communicate the following bit of instruction which will surely be of value to every tea drinker that caree to know what goes into his stomach :

Once a report like this would have sent up prices; now it will merely stimulate activity in current leaves, hay seed, catechu, iron filings, and the various other materials from which men have learned to compound something that, in the grocers' scales, looks like tes, and that, when boiled in water, yields an astringent liquid which can be drunk if sweetened with angar and softened with milk. A noted humories attributed the American fordness for hash to the enter's absolute certainty as to what he was eating-that is heah, If the ten drinker is equally fond of being assured of what he is drinking, the present is a good time for him to ascertain the exact shape of the tea leaf and then examine the dregs in his tea pot in the light of his newly acquir-ed knowledge. If he finds they are not true to sample, but are shaped like our-rant leaves, he will know that he is drinking diluted current tes, which should at least gratify his taste for knowledge. If, on the contrary, he finds that a napkin dipped in the tea pot and then dried seems to be stained with iron rust, he may be sure that he is literally drinking ink made of iron filings and leaves containing an unusual quantity of tannic acid. In either case he will know what he is drinking.

THE German Emperor William, physcally, is an extraordinary old man. He is now in his 85th year. A Berlin special, speaking of his activity and endurance, says :

The active life of the emperor is the subject of general conversation. From the review near Hanover on Thursday of last week, he proceeded direct to Dantzie. On Friday the interview with the Czar took place. On Saturday he looked at the maneuvres near Konitz. He spent Saturday night in Berlin, and left on Sunday morning for Itschoo.
Thence he came to Hamburg on Wednesday, leaving again for Itschoo on the same evening. He went to Kiel on Friday to witness the naval management. and on Sunday he leaves for Baden-Baden to attend the Carlsrahe matriage festivities on Tuesday. Then he will take a rest at Baden. The emperor, in spite of this enormous work, looks very well, and members of his court say that he never complains of fatigue. At Hamburg on Wednesday he received a very cordial welcome.

The vice president's early edu estion was obtained in a country school near Troy, in the neighborhood of which his father presched. He was afterpuris neat to Union College, Scheneo sady, New York, from which he was graduated in 1848. He then studied lew, and in 1950 he was admitted to the ber. He fermed a low partnership in New York with Renates D. Calver, who was afterweed American minister to a South American state. On the election of Mr. Culver as judge of a civil court in Receklyn, the partnership was dishadall the grief of a family becavement: solved, and General Arthur went into partnership with a Mr. Gardner, who died about 1865. In 1871 the firm of Arthur, Phelps and Knevals was formed, with Goneral Arthur as senior partner, and the late District Attorney Benjamin K. Pholps, as another partner.-Shortly before this General Arthur was appointed one of the counsel to the board of tax commissioners at $10,000 a year. The cally legal case of note in which General Arthur acted as counsel was in the suit of Jonathan Lemmons, of Virginia, to recover possession of eight slaves that had been declared free by Judge Palae, of the Superior Court of New York. Lemmon had been incontiously passing through New York with his slaves, intending to ship them to Texas, when they were discovered and freed by an order of Judge Paine, who was of opinion that the Pugitive Sinve Act did not hold the slaves. The general to appeal from the decision. Thereupon the legislature of New York directed the governor to employ counsel to defend the slaves. E.D. Culver and Jessph Blunt were appointed, but withdrew, and afterwards William M. Evarts and General Arthur were retained as council for the slaves. The decision of Jelles Paine was sustained by the Supreme Court, and also affirmed by the damegas. General Arthur got his military title through service on the staff of Governor Édwin D. Morgan. He was appainted engineer in chief on the govereruce's staff, January 1, 1861, and on

SELECT A JEBSAY COW.

All who visit the county fair grounds should make it a point to notice Dr. J. L. Compelly's splendid display of Jersey sows and helpers—a herd of 15 of the slickest, gentlest and finest looking bovines over shown at a fair. Br. Councily enjoys an envision regulation as a successful broader of Jersey cattle, and many sitizens of Decatur are proud owners of bo rood milker can doubtless get one from the Doctor at a low price by calling at his stalls on the east side of the grounds and south of the office. We consider it a duty to ware the citizens, and es pecially the farmers, to keep away from their ware house near the Union Depot. The sad affair was let Direction.

The event a. m. Change on of Heris and out in this way. A worthy farmer put Cases and the same of Heris and the Cases of Heris and the become impressed with the idea with the lacks on Wagon was the best that the Jackson Wagon was the best market, same put that the Jackson Wagon was the best market with the lackson was the expressing his views to one of Ar cher's competitors, one of the most worthy and truthful men, he was told the following: "Archer is a very nice man, and a good fellow, and believes all he says, but on that Jackson Wagon he is slightly insane." It rath er upset the farmer, but he believed that he would take another look at the Jackson Wagon; and the insane notion took a more decided form and the first thing he knew he had bought

To all appearances the old gentleman was all right as he drove States' Attorney Johns sid some tall theman was all right us he drove saking round about Philadelphia while he away in his new wagon, but in a few was gone, and also learned to eat oystem. days he returned and it was plain to W. J. Forbes has begun the erection of he seen the insanity was of a more positive character than old man Arther had shown, and he remarked, "I would not take $30 for that high on my Jaskada Wagon." It was sad but true.

Another poor victim was bitten and he was hauling wheat in company with five or six of his neighbors, and he declared his "load was a haif horse lighter than any in the crowd, and the neighbours fearing he would become violent, we presume, said, "Yes, it's even so; the Jackson Wagon runs by far lighter than any of our wagons, it's plain to be seen.'

Another poor victim hauled 130 bushels of wheat at a load, and we are not sure but the horses were affected, for they went right along a though there was but the usual load, spread to an slarming extent, and it is difficult to say what will be the recult, but this we may determine, that unless we can hedge in old man Archer and his boy, the Jackson wagon mania will take the counties of Macon, Moultrie and Douglas, where old man Archer will beyond a doubt sell nine car loads of them. Thus can we see at a glance the danger, and we warm our readers to keep away from his warehouse near the Union Depot. We deem Wadvisable for our authorities to place cards of warning on the corners near the warehouse that our unsuspecting citizens may be saved from the danger of exposure to this insanity. In the mirly, parts of Miss Auna Dickinson's carrier she met a lady in traveling who proved very congen-ial and invited her to visit her at an elegant residence on the suburbs ofa large city. The invitation was accepted, and Miss Dickinson, being much fatigued on the evening of her arrival, retired early. Scon she heard the clashing of chains, seemingly in the room with her. At, first she thought she must be ner-your, and tried to aleep, but "tired nature's sweet restorer' was woord in vain. Soon the noise was heard again and suddenly she felt the pressure of a human being very near her—even on the bed where she lay—and also felt an icy-cold chain pressed against her. Springing from the bed she ran acreaming into the hall, where she was met by the lady whose guest she was and fell fainting at her feet. The intruder was the insane husband of Miss Dickinson's hosiess, who had escaped from his room and keeper, and the chains were light chains about his hands, which were used to keep him from injuring himself. Miss Dickinson had not been informed that such a person existed, yet had been assigned a room in the same portion of the house he occupied.
